Eggnog

Just like Japan, winter in the U.S. has a variety of seasonal dishes and products only available during the cold months. One of my favorites of these limited time things is eggnog.

This is a thick, creamy, and sweet drink that I had never had homemade. However, as eggnog is not at any grocery store or convenience store in Japan I had to try making it myself if I wanted to drink some of my favorite drinks for the first time in over 2 years.

This recipe is based on the one written by Alton Brown (a famous TV chef in the U.S.) and modified to what I could easily find at my local store.

It turned out less thick than the eggnog sold in stores in the US but it was amazing!

Table with 1 column: Ingredients (1.5 liters). Rows include: 4 egg yolks, 1/3 cup and 1 TBSP sugar, 500 ml milk, 200 ml whipping cream, 80 ml bourbon or rum (optional), 1 tsp grated nutmeg, 1/2 tsp ground cinnamon, 4 egg whites.

NOTES:

- 1. Traditionally served cold but you can totally have it warm.
2. I included the alcohol in the recipe for those who want to try it but it is by no means necessary. I left it out of mine.
3. You can do all the mixing by hand with a whisk but I recommend a mixer.
4. You do not have to cook the mixture; I just like thicker eggnog so I chose this recipe. Search for Alton Brown's recipe for how to make it without using heat.

Method

- 1. In a mixing bowl, beat the egg yolks until they lighten in color
2. Little by little add the 1/3 cup of sugar and beat until completely dissolved
3. In a saucepan mix together the milk, cream, nutmeg, and cinnamon
4. Warm over high heat, stirring often, until it just starts to boil
5. Remove from heat
6. Temper the egg yolk mixture by slowly adding the milk mixture while stirring vigorously
7. Stir in the alcohol (optional)
8. Pour back into the mixing bowl to cool to room temperature
9. Chill thoroughly in the refrigerator
10. In a clean mixing bowl, beat the egg whites to soft peaks
11. Slowly add the 1 TBSP of sugar to the egg whites while continuing to whisk until stiff peaks form
12. Mix the egg whites into the completely chilled milk and egg mixture
13. Drink it all
